

TO RESUME WORK

Miners To Return On Thursday

DECIDE AGAINST A GENERAL STRIKE

Those Who Vote To Stay Out In Small Minority

PRESIDENT MITCHELL ADDRESSES MEN AND IS CHEERED

Scranton, Pa., May 9.—Work will be resumed by mine workers throughout the anthracite fields Thursday. The repair men and others necessary to prepare the collieries for general operations reported for work today. This was decided upon at the closing session of the convention on Tuesday. The agreement entered into on Monday in New York between the operators and the sub-surface committee was formally ratified.

A few of the radicals took the floor when the motion to ratify the Monday agreement was made, and once more urged that the suspension be turned into a strike, but they were hopelessly in the minority, and their remarks were listened to in silence.

The convention adopted resolutions condemning the state constabulary, and providing for the mine workers as an organization taking an active part in politics in the nomination and support of legislative candidates.

President Mitchell was vociferously applauded when he entered the hall. In response to calls for a speech, he said:

"Some are inclined to believe that because we have not secured an advance in wages or any improvement in the conditions of employment, we have not accomplished anything. I want to say that I believe you have taken the most advanced step in the history of this movement.

"You have secured what you have never before secured—a signed agreement with the operators. It is an agreement which is not entered into with the United Mine Workers, but with the officers of that organization; they have signed an agreement with your national president and with your district president.

"I am convinced that if the United Mine Workers maintain the strength and solidarity of their organization three years hence the railroad operators will ask you to make an agreement with them, rather than that you should be forced to ask them to make an agreement with you.

"Last Summer I made a tour through the region. I urged the mine workers to come back into the organization. At that time there were only 34,000 members. At the close of the tour there were 80,000 members in the organization. Had that tour not been made there would have been a reduction in wages, according to reliable information that I have in my possession. My information is that the railroads were ready to increase the working day from nine to ten hours; to require the engineers to work seven days in the week and to require the firemen to work twelve hours instead of eight. If this is true, then we have won a victory.

"You owe it to yourselves, to your families, to your class and to your craft, to be loyal and true to this organization which has done so much for you."

ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVES

Three Of Them Ordered For The Atlantic Shore Line

Three new electric locomotives have been ordered by the Atlantic Shore Line Railway Company. They will be of the very latest design and will be handsome machines. The locomotives are to be used for hauling freight cars, in connection with the company's steamship line from this city to Boston.

Air brake equipment has been ordered for all the open and large closed cars of the company and other changes and improvements are contemplated.

The company's officials intend to furnish their lines with the most modern equipment everywhere and plan a systematic development of the rural districts through which the lines pass. Work on the connecting line of railway between York Beach and Kennebunk will, it is expected, be commenced in a very short time.

PERKINS-LANE SUIT

Tried in Superior Court at Exeter Before Judge Chamberlain

Before Judge Chamberlain in the superior court at Exeter on Tuesday, a beginning was made on a suit brought by Joseph Perkins and his wife, Lillie M. Perkins, of Seabrook, against Joshua and Howard G. Lane, who do business at Hampton under the firm name of J. A. Lane.

The plaintiffs aver that on July 28, 1905, Mrs. Perkins ordered five gallons of kerosene at the Lane store and that instead she received five gallons of gasoline. On the following day, Mrs. Perkins says, she started a fire with the fluid in the stove. An explosion occurred and she received severe injuries.

She sues for $10,000 and Mr. Perkins asks for $1200 for loss of services.

The plaintiffs are represented by John W. Kelley of Portsmouth and the defendants by Judge Samuel W. Emery of Boston and L. F. Hobbs of Hampton.

LETTER FROM DRISCOLL

He Describes Situation in San Francisco at Present Time

James H. Driscoll of Portsmouth, who left here a few months ago for California for the benefit of his health, has sent a letter to friends here, stating that he is in San Francisco. Although with the army of the unfortunate, he was not injured. He describes the situation as it is today and says he goes to the relief stations every day with a little bag for his rations, handed out by the soldiers.

He is anxious to get away from San Francisco and will locate in Denver, as soon as he can leave the wrecked city.

AT THE NAVY YARD

Two boilermakers were called on Tuesday in the steam engineering department.

The U. S. S. Cuba, which has been expected to be floated into the dry dock for a week or more, will probably be kept in the basin until the uptakes and smokepipes, which have been under construction for the ship, are put in place.

It is known that the builders of the U. S. S. Georgia did not help in the original plan of sending that ship to this yard.

Sergt. Leary, who captured the prisoners, Dutton and Myers, on Tuesday, has been complimented by the officials of the station for his bravery and for the cool manner in which he disarmed the man with the gun while on the way back to the prison ship Southery.

Frank Jones of Portsmouth, employed in the steam engineering department, while fishing with a cunner line on Tuesday noon, succeeded in landing a cod which tipped the scales at twenty-eight and one-half pounds. The aid of several onlookers was necessary before the cod could be landed without parting the line. This is certainly a record breaking catch under the conditions. A worm was the bait used.

Schooner Edward H. Cole sailed from Norfolk on Tuesday with a cargo of 2600 tons of coal for the construction and repair department.

Estimates are being made by the construction and repair department for preliminary work to be done on the collier Hannibal.

It is almost time for someone to revive the agitation for a pardon for Mrs. Barrows.

TELEPHONE COMPANY SEEKS POLE LOCATIONS

San Francisco Benefit Sure To Be A Success

GOSSIP OF A DAY COLLECTED BY OUR CORRESPONDENT

Kittery, May 9.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company has again petitioned the selectmen for a location for its poles, wires and necessary fixtures on Whipple road, from Wentworth street to Railroad avenue, Kittery Point, poles to be on the northern side of the road.

There will be a hearing on the subject on May 22 at the selectmen's office at seven o'clock in the evening.

It is much to be hoped that the telephone company will be allowed to put the line through, although the small sized poles which would be erected would be no ornament, being on the opposite side from other poles. This is what the selectmen have objected to. If the company will agree to place its poles on the south side, all will go well.

The concert for the benefit of San Francisco sufferers which will be given by Miss Minnie Burke Eldredge on Thursday evening promises to be successful and entertaining from the following well known persons who will participate:

Funeral services over the body of Mrs. Alice Stevenson were held from her late residence at North Kittery at two o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. A. E. Roberts officiated.

A regular meeting of Red Men will be held at Grange Hall this evening.

The Knights of Pythias will hold a regular meeting at Odd Fellows' Hall this evening.

Miss Bessie Whitehouse of Worcester, Mass., is in town.

Cater and Benfield of Portsmouth are soon to open a grocery store in town.

Miss Lillian Goodrich attended the conference at Stratham, N. H., on Tuesday.

Joseph McCobb of Pleasant street who has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Gentner at Charlestown, Mass., returned home on Tuesday. He was accompanied by his daughter.

Mrs. Ella Leavitt of Exeter was a visitor in town on Tuesday.

Mrs. Jacob Bartlett and her little son of Brooklyn, N. Y., are visiting Mrs. Frank Horrocks.

On Saturday, May 12, at three o'clock in the afternoon, there will be a baseball game between the Kittery team and the Ireland-Grafton Shoe Company nine of Dover.

Kittery Point

The sloop Pearl of Gloucester, from which John McCormick was lost on Friday, arrived on Tuesday and got McCormick's dory and trawls, which were stored in Randall's market when he was landed here Saturday night. The sloop then proceeded eastward.

Oliver L. Frisbee was in town on Tuesday.

Three thousand pine trees have been set out on the estate of the late William H. Goodwin on Gerrish Island.

A river barge has loaded wood at Gerrish Island from the land of Valentine Mathes of Dover, which has been sold to the Fiske Brick Company of Dover Point. The barge was towed to the brick plant by the tug Iva this morning.

Frank Frisbee passed Tuesday in Alfred, Me.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Christian Church will hold an apron and necktie party at Frisbee's Hall this evening. Entertainment will be furnished and ice cream will be on sale.

Notes

A dull three months is now predicted for the coal trade at this port. Dealers up the slate are well stocked, as the recent rush of coal here well attests. No heavy receipts of the black diamonds will be had at the port of Portsmouth before August.

The demand for coal charters is very poor at present and all craft are hard put to it for business. The Reading Company has chartered a number of its barges in the Southern lumber trade, but the majority of them are laid up.

Tug Prudence of the Tice Towing Company of New York, a well known visitor here, has been sold into the Munn fleet of Philadelphia. She is at present under charter to the J. B. King Plaster Company and will continue in that trade until the latter concern launches a new tug to replace the Gypsum King, recently lost on Grand Manan, N. B.

THE HIGH ESTEEM

In Which John W. Hayes Is Held By Workmen

WAS APTLY DEMONSTRATED ON TUESDAY EVENING

When Retired Master Machinist Received The Valuable Gift

OF A HANDSOME GOLD WATCH AND CHAIN VALUED AT $125

John W. Hayes, for years master machinist of the steam engineering department of Portsmouth navy yard, received on Tuesday evening a valuable testimonial of esteem from the men of the department with whom he had so long been associated.

Former Mayor Edward E. McIntire called at the residence of Mr. Hayes on Middle road and presented to him in behalf of the men of the steam engineering department, a solid gold watch and chain valued at $125.

Mr. Hayes was taken completely by surprise, but gratefully accepted the gift, although too nearly overcome to utter more than a few simple words of thanks.

No man better liked or more thoroughly respected than Mr. Hayes ever held a responsible position under the government. Those who had so long worked under his direction deeply regretted his retirement and as evidence of their friendship unostentatiously presented to him a gift valuable both to himself and for the spirit it which prompted it.

Mr. Hayes gave up active duty because of his health, retiring on April 30.

ANOTHER NEW TRAIN

For Portsmouth On The Summer Schedule

FIFTEEN FROM THIS CITY TO BOSTON IN ALL

Portsmouth gets the third new train for Boston for the coming season, leaving here for the Hub at 5.10 a. m.

The train comes from the Maine Central railroad and has been added to the schedule principally to help the regular morning Pullman, which is a heavy express train.

Never in the history of the railroad has Portsmouth had such service as will be on the timetables the coming Summer. There will be fifteen trains in all to Boston. They will leave as follows: 3.28, 5.10, 6.30, 7.30, 7.35, 8.15, 10.55, 11.06 a. m.; 1.43, 2.00, 2.21, 3.05, 5.00, 6.30, 7.28 p. m.

It is thought that when the Winter schedule is again arranged not all of the new Summer trains will be cancelled. One or more of those put on for the Summer will probably be kept on the schedule permanently.

THE VICTIMWas The Bitter Opponent Of The
Parliamentary ReformsWISHED CZAR'S RETURN TO OLD PATHS
OF ABSOLUTISM

Kieff, Russia, May 8.—General Count Alexis Pavlovich Ignatieff, formerly governor of Kieff, was assassinated here today.

Count Ignatieff was, with General Trepoff, the conspirator to induce Emperor Nicholas to withdraw the parliamentary reforms and return to the old path of absolutism. He was one of two sons of the famous first Count Ignatieff who, from a common soldier in the imperial guard, rose to be president of the committee of ministers, governor general of St. Petersburg, founder of one of the richest families of Russia. The story goes that the emperor, attracted by the unusual stature and soldierly bearing of the young private on guard at the door of the imperial apartments, put him in the line of promotion, and finding him zealous and devoted advanced him rapidly from one post to another until he became general aide-de-camp, first imperial favorite, director of the corps of pages and finally in 1877 he was made a count of the Russian empire. He was chiefly distinguished for his uncompromising devotion to the old autocratic ideals of Russia, and an aversion which found expression in that he might rent the half dozen or more splendid residences he longed to him in the Russian capital.

During the wave of disorder which swept over Russia after "Red Sunday," Ignatieff was sent by the emperor to investigate the situation in southern Russia and his report on the urgent necessity for granting immediate reforms to avoid a catastrophe was one of the chief reasons that induced Emperor Nicholas to proclaim the first Russian parliament.

WHAT IS BILE?

The principal work of the liver is the secretion of bile—a golden brown, mucilage-like substance, composed of certain liver elements or salts, mucus and coloring matter. It is the natural antiseptic and cathartic of the bowels. A torpid liver means deficient bile secretion, which later means constipation with its attending evils.

The bile plays a most important part in promoting healthy digestion. Its absence results in congestion of the bowels, with indigestion, and to correct this and secure healthy bile secretion Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills have a very selective action—in fact, they cure biliousness with the bilious headache, driving the fecal contents out of the body which, if permitted to remain, would poison the whole system and rapidly undermine the general health.

Never permit yourself to become bilious. A sick headache, a sudden attack of indigestion, or a fitful diarrhea with dizziness and a yellow-coated tongue call for the prompt use of

PILLS

Nature's Laxative

They are by far the best remedy to empty the bowels and relieve congested conditions. They act as a true tonic to the liver, preventing as well as curing constipation. One or two of these pills taken every night will gently stimulate the liver and correct biliousness without the driving purgative effects of harsh drugs. Their gentle laxative action especially commends them to ladies, who, after eating and are subject to periodical headaches. To secure a healthy secretion of bile, thus establishing perfect bowel regularity, these little pills possess merits peculiarly their own, not found in other remedies. These Little Vegetable Pills

Following the suppression of the Moscow revolt, however, calmed his fears and he became the active coadjutor of General Trepoff in supporting the repressive measures of Minister of Interior Durnovo, as in the intrigue to bring about the downfall of Count Witte. The devotion of Ignatieff and Trepoff, it has been maintained by Russians, was more to the throne of Russia, the autocratic power, than to the wearer of the imperial crown, and on several occasions little stood between them and a coup d'etat.

TERRIFIC VOLCANIC HEAT.

Temperature of 1,600 Degrees Fahrenheit Attained by Molten Rock.

In a recently published volume on volcanoes Prof. C. Doelter undertakes to tell why volcanoes have eruptions. Molten rock such as is flowing from Vesuvius requires a temperature of 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit, so that it becomes liquid only far down in the earth, perhaps 60 or 100 miles. Below the outer crust of cooled and solidified rocks there must be a larger zone of rock which still remains solid, because its temperature is less than that of the melting point corresponding to the pressure under which it rests, and below that again there must be rock or magma in a state of fusion; it is to this magma that Prof. Doelter looks for the primary source of all volcanic activity. At the same time the depth at which this primary reservoir of magma lies and the pressure under which it is confined are so great that a direct eruption from it is inconceivable, but when by movements in the overlying crust or otherwise a channel is opened the magma may rise to a depth where it is surrounded by rock at a lower temperature than the melting point. In these circumstances solidification begins.

From all volcanoes large quantities of steam, of carbonic acid and other gases are evolved, and the course of every lava stream is marked by clouds of steam evolved from the cooling lava. At one time—and the idea is still common—this steam was supposed to have been derived from sea water which has obtained access to the molten lava while still underground, but this explanation is now generally rejected, being impossible in some cases and inadequate in all, and the greater part of the steam and other emanations from a volcano are now regarded as directly derived from an original store in the interior of the earth. However this may be, it is certain that the magma from which volcanic lava is derived is not merely in a state of igneous fusion, but is combined with water and gases which are given off as it solidifies, and by their escape frequently form miniature volcanoes on the surface of lava streams.

NOT THE PROPER SPIRIT.

Customer in Jeweler's Was Not Endowed with the Christmas Feeling.

"It isn't the presents—it's the spirit," said January Jones, the millionaire miner of Goldfields, apropos of Christmas.

"I was in a bric-a-brac shop last January, and something that took place there showed me that with too many of us the Christmas spirit is not the proper one.

"I was talking to the proprietor. One of the clerks stepped up excitedly, his eyes beaming with the hope of a big sale.

"Say, boss," he whispered, "give me the key to the safe. There's a lady wants a solitaire just like the one she has on. She thinks it will be fun to have two rings alike."

"The proprietor did not bring forth the key. He only shook his head and said sadly:

"Don't waste any time on her. The ring she has on is a Christmas present, and she only wants to find out what it cost."

DEVOTION DEMANDED.

Visiting Beaux Must Depart Early or Join in Family Prayer.

A Presbyterian clergyman of this city, with two popular daughters, has discovered a new way to end the visits of their beaux at a seemingly hour—a plan which might appeal to lay families as well, says the Philadelphia Record.

For a number of years it has been a custom of this good man to hold evening worship after supper, always concluding the prayers with a short discourse. Things went very well until the daughters began to receive the attentions of young men, and begged off or stole away to make their evening toilets. Then the minister changed the devotional hour until ten in the evening.

This reform created an upheaval, but the father insisted, and at the stroke of ten the visiting young men are now left two alternatives: Either to leave or join with the family in prayer, and it has proved a severe test of their devotion for the daughters when those not prayerfully inclined stuck it out, sermon and all.

Money in Raising Black Foxes.

A Maine farmer who raises nothing but foxes claims to have discovered that the black fox is not a freak and he is proceeding to prove this theory by mixing a black fox from Ohio with a red one caught in Maine woods. From the cross he has a pair of fine black foxes, ten weeks old, and these twins are not the first he has raised the same way he is confident that in time he may be able to replace all the red foxes on his farm and raise for the fur market nothing but the finest blacks, whose pelts sell for $200 to $300 each. Judging from sales made in the past, the four black foxes he has now are entered on his stock list as worth $1,000, and he feels rich. He has the foxes inclosed by a wire fence 16 feet high.—Worcester (Mass.) Telegram.

Tale That Was Told.

Ella—Hello told me that you told her that secret I told you not to tell her.

COMMENDABLE COOLNESS.

Young Man Who Knew How to "Pop the Question" Without Getting Battled.

"You should know well what coolness is," said a general. "American history is indebted to you, Capt. Hobson, for one of its most perfect and most brilliant examples of this trait."

The young man, flushing a little at the compliment, said, with an embarrassed laugh:

"On, there have been many better instances of coolness than mine."

"Not at all," said the general. "Not at all, sir."

"But yes," persisted Capt. Hobson.

"For instance?" said the other.

Capt. Hobson thought a moment.

Then he said:

"The most perfect exhibition of coolness ever made came from a friend of mine—an old man now, but still a bachelor.

"This gentleman loved a beautiful widow in the summer of '95. He courted her with ardor through the months of July and August, and in September he proposed.

"It was a cool evening, the evening of the proposal, and my friend and the widow sat indoors, the light lowered, the dusk faintly illuminated by a fire of birch logs.

"So," my friend ended, "I love you, and ask your hand in marriage." He rose. "Will you," he said, "be mine?"

"The widow gazed at the flame thoughtfully. Then in a low voice she said:

"Don't make me answer immediately. Give me a little time for thought."

"Very good," said my friend. "How long do you want?"

"A half hour," murmured the widow.

"A half hour be it," said my friend, taking up his hat. "And in the meantime," he added, "I'll just go down to Smith's and get a shave."

TO DRINK KING'S HEALTH.

No Longer Considered Necessary in England to Use Alcoholic Liquor.

The superstition in England and its colonies that it is necessary when drinking the king's health to pledge his majesty in a draft of some alcoholic liquor has been exploded.

As long ago as October, 1902, Rear Admiral King-Hall obtained an opinion from his majesty, through Lord Knollys, that total abstinence need compromise neither their loyalty nor their convictions when drinking his majesty's health.

Permission to publish the letter, which was at first employed for private circulation, has now been granted by his majesty, and here it is:

"Dear Capt. King-Hall: His majesty is afraid that it would be difficult to make any public announcement that he considers his health can be as loyal as drunk in water as in wine."

The king commands me, however, to say that you are authorized to make it known "privately," and in any way that you think best, and that you are authorized to state that total abstinence can always drink his health in some nonalcoholic drink to his entire satisfaction.

"October 17, 1902."

Navy teetotalers have been aware of this gracious expression of opinion on the part of his majesty for the last three years.

The publication of the letter now comes as a boon to many a harassed abstainer, who has frequently been caught between his heartfelt loyalty and the sanctity of his temperance pledge.

Boat Riding in Air.

Row, row, row your boat gently down the air is the way one must do with the new aerial rowboat. It has a gas bag roughly cigar-shaped, whose equator is much nearer the front of the bag than usual, and a light frame work supports the occupant. It is raised and lowered, propelled forward and backward by the use of a pair of wing-like oars. By the use of weights the bag can be made to raise just an additional weight half a pound less than that of the occupant. Then gravity is overcome by the use of the oars. Anyone who understands how to row can operate the aerial rowboat, but so far no experienced aeronaut has tried the machine, although several hundred people have rowed up and down the park in Los Angeles, Cal., where the boat is being tested. The bag is 37 feet long and 15 feet wide at the equator. To raise the car and an occupant weighing 150 pounds 2,500 cubic feet of gas is sufficient. A speed of from four to six miles an hour has been attained by good oarsmen.

Growth of the School City.

The school city has been organized in 33 of the Philadelphia schools, and in a number of schools in New York, Syracuse, and other cities. Besides this, Mr. Gill, at the invitation of Gen. Wood, spent two years in Cuba, as an appointee of the United States government, organizing this system in the public schools to the boundless delight of the children and the hearty appreciation of the authorities. The government has also stated to Mr. Gill its desire that he should do similar work in the Philippines.—Century.

Blasted Hopes.

The Bore—May I ask you a question?

The Belle—Certainly; a dozen if you like, if there is anything I really enjoy it is posing as an information bureau.

"I—er—have only one; but it is—er—not an everyday question."

"Oh, I'm so glad! I was afraid you were going to ask me to marry you."

—Chicago Daily News.

THE WHITE MOUNTAINS

Action Taken That May Bear On Their Setting Apart

A property transfer, which may have a bearing on the setting apart of the White mountains as a forest preserve, has been reported in the country courthouse at Lancaster when the sale of 70,000 acres of timber land, including Mount Washington, was entered upon the books of the county. The grantor is Robert Os good and the purchaser the Garland, Cobb and Stahl company, which is formed for the purpose of buying the property.

The company includes B. C. Garland of Whitefield, E. O. Garland of Bartlett, F. W. Cobb of Conway and A. M. Stahl of Berlin, all prominent business men of those places. It is stated that the territory transferred may form the nucleus of the White mountain region which, under a bill now pending in Congress, would be made into a public reserve.

The consideration of the sale is understood to be between $700,000 and $800,000. Mt. Webster is also included in the area, which extends through part of Coos county and Carroll county. The land was bought by Mr. Os good last July under a mortgage sale in connection with the litigation over the affairs of the Bartlett Lumber Company.

RIB 40,000 YEARS OLD

Prehistoric Bone Of Mammoth Or Whale Found In Newburyport

While excavating for an addition to the Educator bakery in Newburyport, workmen dug up a rib bone six feet, five inches long, supposedly of a mammoth or right whale, and probably from 30,000 to 50,000 years old.

When the pickaxe first struck the obstruction it was thought to be a low lying root of a tree. Upon closer examination, however, its hard formation showed beyond a doubt that it was a bone, but of what animal one knew.

The bone is bow-shaped, with the curvature more marked near the ends instead of being gradual. While six feet, five inches in length, it is five feet across from tip to tip, and the height when both ends rest on the ground is one foot, eight inches.

A bakery has long been carried on at the place where the bone was found. It was here that the expedition of Arnold was fitted out to the invasion of Canada in 1775.

The curiosity has already attracted great attention, and the scientists of the Peabody Academy of Science at Salem hope to have it in this museum as a loan, if not as a permanent exhibit. When Prof. Sears of Salem saw the relic and examined the character of the soil in which it was found he concluded that it was part of the remains, most likely a rib, of a mammoth of a period antedating the glacial area, which might be anywhere from 30,000 to 50,000 years old.

Director Morse of the same institution later expressed the opinion that it might be the rib of a right whale. He is anxious to have the bone sent to Salem, when a careful study may be made in order to more definitely determine its true origin and character. The fossil is in a good state of preservation. Manager Johnson is inclined to send it to the Salem scientists for their inspection.

PORTSMOUTH CORRESPONDENT

Writes To Newburyport News On Matter Of History

The following from the Newburyport News is of local interest:

To the Editor of the News:—I have received your paper of April 25 and wish to correct a statement concerning my uncle, Capt. Abel Coffin and the Siamese twins. I never heard of any superstition about their birth among the natives of Slam, and I am sure the king of that country did not give them to my uncle. He first saw them, boys, playing on the beach. Learning that their mother was very poor, he offered her a sum of money for them, which she accepted.

Capt. Coffin brought them to Newburyport having them exhibited in New England. He also with his wife went to England with them. As they grew older they became hard to manage, being high tempered and obstreperous. My uncle was very kind and indulgent to them, treating them as members of his family. At the age of 21 years they took their freedom, starting out for themselves. They grew rich, settled on a farm in North Carolina, married sisters, and had families.

Capt. Coffin went 18 voyages to the East Indies. The voyage on which he died, was in the ship Centro owned by Capt. Daniel Bacon of Boston. Returning home he was so very ill the

A VITAL PROBLEM OF TODAY

No problem more vital to the welfare of the United States than that of immigration demands solution in this country. The man who has said that it involves the continued existence of the republic as it is today has probably exaggerated very little, if at all.

The race which peopled this country is noted for its ability to absorb other races. In this respect it resembles the ancient Greek people. Absorption, however, is only possible to a limited degree. Certainly, millions of aliens cannot long be admitted every year without eventually making their influence felt. America cannot receive hordes of Hungarians, Russians and Poles and still retain the characteristics which have always marked its people.

It is very well to say that the men and women who come to us from Europe quickly imbibe American ideas and that their children are just as much Americans as the descendants of the original settlers. This may be true of immigrants of those races allied to our own. It may even be true in a measure of those who come from southern and southeastern Europe. The fact remains, nevertheless, that the great majority of those who are coming to America at the present time are aliens in every way. Their ideas and ideals, their manners and customs and their characters are as foreign to our can as they could well be.

A certain number of these people might be educated and converted into good Americans. A few of the better class of the peasantry might be admitted without objection, but only a few. In the mass, they must either be kept out or those to whom the land belongs must be prepared to accept the consequences uncomplainingly.

The presence of these people tends to the creation of a permanent lower class, in itself dangerous in a country ruled by a popular government. Where a few thousands might in time raise themselves to a position of equality with the Americans, it is impossible for millions of them to do so. They lack the mental and physical qualities which enable the man from the British Isles or the northern countries to better his condition.

The restriction of immigration is nothing more than a measure for self-preservation. Americans must realize this and realize it soon.

LAST VOYAGE OF COLUMBUS

Today occurs the anniversary of the starting of the last voyage of Christopher Columbus, to which particular interest is lent just at this time because its object was to discover a passage between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, which he imagined to exist somewhere between Honduras and Paria. This passage the American man with the level is now engaged in digging, after the lapse of four hundred and four years since the setting out of Columbus.

THE PRESIDENT'S INTENTION

BIRDS' EYE VIEWS

'Tis possible, since May
Brings April showers
The month of June may bring
The glad May flowers!

Surely, if born in the United States, a profit is not without honor in its own country.

Grandpa Rockefeller is now actually a billionaire, and yet he doesn't look a process server in the face.

"How does your garden grow?" is a pertinent query not very pleasingly answerable this year, when everything is so belated.

Oyama was wise enough to retire from the head of the Japanese army. Perhaps this was due to his having taken a course in the United States history.

The weather prediction in a certain almanac starts a warm wave in circulation today. If it arrives on time, it will be none too soon to please most folks.

Since New Hampshire's Daughters have accepted the buttercup as their floral emblem, how would it do for the Granite State to accept the buttercup as the State flower?

Would Goldsmith have written of "The watch-dog's voice that bayed the whispering wind" if he had been assailed by that same savage canine when passing quietly about his business along the sidewalk?

Most people solve the tainted money problem like the old woman who marked her pies "T. M.," meaning "Tis mine" and "Tain't mine." In the matter of tainted money, we look at our currency and say "T. M.," which may be taken either for "Tis money" or "Tain't money." In the former case, we keep it; in the latter, we pass it on.

At this season of the year, when teacher as well as scholar is looking forward to the summer vacation, how many feel with Thomson?

"Delightful task! to rear the tender thought,
To teach the young idea how to shoot,
To pour the fresh instruction o'er the mind,
To breathe the enlivening spirit, and to fix
The generous purpose in the glowing breast."

Or is it only at Sunday schools that the last is taught?

"Perhaps Chicago will be converted, after all. Anyhow, a Chicago Methodist minister has devised an endless chain of prayer to run five years, and has begun by mailing 1,000,000 cards to Methodists in all parts of the world, asking such recipient to join the movement, and to pray daily, either at the noon hour or at some other convenient time, until Jan. 1, 1911. Eventually he hopes to reach every Christian in the world," says the Boston Globe.

If this scheme shows results at the end of even twice the allotted time, no benighted sinner will have an iota of doubt remaining concerning the efficacy of prayer. The Chicago pastor, however, might have begun on the United States Senate and the man with the muck rake, just for a starter.

On The Deep Lake Trail

Astir at the break of dawn,
And up with the rising sun,
A hasty try from the brook hard by.
The pack rolled up, one glance at the sky,
And the day's march is begun

A rhythm of feet and brain,
With the sense all in tune
To the lurch tree's cheery 'mid the far-off green,
The gush of the brook, the jay-bird's scream,
And the scent of the woods in June.

A bed of boughs beside the trail
Beneath a whispering pine,
The camp fire bright, the starlit
night,

And the inward peace of an awed de-

Such a life is mine.

Maine's Second District

The Second district Republican Congressional convention is called for Lewiston on June 26. The Republicans of that district will, at that time, be proud to re-nominate their present representative in Congress, Hon. Charles E. High Living Isn't Always High Thinking

Zion City is reported to be in danger of a famine. Such disagreeable things are averted at Shiloh by a diet of mush and milk, with the milk and most of the mush left out in case of emergency. And this low living is said to be a great incentive to high thinking.—Biddeford Journal.

She Gets A Better Class

Canada pays an immigrant premium of $13 on every British agricultural laborer and of $5 on each settler from the contingent, the money going to immigration agents. In this country a head tax is proposed to limit the vast tide of newcomers. Our neighbor on the north is willing to take the crumbs and studies the situation closely for advantages.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Or Gorky

The Boston Transcript, Tuesday, had an editorial on "The Tinted Jerome" and another on "An Imperium in Imperio." Thus does our esteemed Boston contemporary do its share in keeping up the tradition that even the Boston back drivers read Homer and Virgil in the original languages, and that the pupils in the primary grades of the public schools take Tolstol and Browning with their breakfast food.—Biddeford Journal.

WANTS MORE OFFICERS

New York's Portsmouth-Born Commissioner Makes A Request

Commissioner Bingham, New York's Portsmouth-born police head, has written to the Board of Aldermen asking for 2,500 more patrolmen, 100 more mounted men, three more in inspectors and 300 or 400 detectives.

"If there is any objection to the increase of men owing to the increasing expenses," concluded the Commissioner, "the simple answer is that inadequate police protection will prove incomparably more costly than proper protection by the police."

In the opening of his letter the Commissioner presented the growing needs of the Bronx.

The population in the Bronx has increased from 100,000 in 1895 to 300,000, he said, and there are already eighteen more patrolmen. In the Alexander Avenue Precinct, the population has increased from 10,000 to 80,000 since 1898, but the force there is smaller than it was in 1898. Of the men asked for he said from 400 to 600 would be assigned to the Bronx.

The opening of the Summer resorts will soon require the services of 900 policemen.

OLD HOME WEEK

Will Be Elaborately Observed in Clinton County, N. Y.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., May 8.—The citizens of Clinton county, New York, are making preparations to have an Old Home week, Saturday, June 30, to Saturday, July 7, 1906, and it is expected that former residents, some of whom, it is believed, are now living in Portsmouth and vicinity will return to visit old scenes, renew old friendships, and participate in the celebration festivities.

The program will include appropriate services in all the churches in the county on Sunday, July 1, and during the week, on days to be selected, the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the new City Hospital at Plattsburgh, reunions of the alumni of the schools, tournament of the Plattsburgh Rod and Gun Club, reunion of former physicians of Clinton County, excursions to the Adirondacks, Ausable Chasm and on the lake, lawn fetes and on Independence day a grand old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration. In addition a street fair will be held in Plattsburgh, July 2 to July 7.

The names and addresses of all former residents are desired, and if sent to William L. Patison, Secretary Old Home week committee, Plattsburgh, N. Y., invitations to return to Clinton County and attend the celebration will be sent them.

THE THEATRICAL FOLK

Rev. John Snyder and His Play

Rev. John Snyder, for many years, twenty-seven or more, pastor of the Church of the Messiah in St. Louis, has just become an interesting figure in the world of theatricals, as a play written by him, a drama of Cape Cod folks, and which has had a most phenomenal run of success at Mo-

Scene in "As Ye Sow"

Vicket's Theatre, Chicago, and at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, will be seen at Music Hall next Monday evening.

The clergyman has called his play "As Ye Sow", a title somewhat suggestive of Biblical lore, but which in that respect does not represent the story told in the piece, a thoroughly modern tale of love and treason, self-sacrificing and reward, always keeping in view the words of the New Testament, "God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man sows that shall he reap." The author of the new play was born in Philadelphia, studied in the Meadville Theological School and took his first charge at Hingham, Mass., where he remained three years. He then accepted a call to St. Louis and was in that city for twenty-seven years. Since 1900 he has lived in Wellesley Hills, Mass. His play, which is the first play written by an American clergyman to see the footlights, is spoken of in the highest terms of praise by the entire press throughout the country.

Curiosity has been aroused here to such an extent by this great dramatic triumph that it would not be surprising to see all records broken at Music Hall.

Keith's Theatre

Amusement seekers conversant with the merit of vaudeville shows will certainly be strongly impressed with the list of entertainers announced below and scheduled to appear at Keith's for the week beginning May 10. From time to time there have appeared at Keith's many of the European bookings of the Keith circuit, but it is safe to say from among the whole list none bears the reputation as a juggler that is attributed to Salerno, who is to be one of the principal attractions for the coming week. Salerno, who is unquestionably the most dexterous and artistic juggler who has ever visited this country, and all his work is accomplished with a skill that is really delightful to witness. The surrounding show includes several newcomers to Boston and some of the best vaudevillians of this country. Prominent on the list will be Callahan and Mack, presenting their delightful Irish comedy sketch, "The Old Neighborhood," which although seen here before, is always welcome; the Camille trio, mirth-provoking comedy-bar artists; the Basque Quartet, a mixed quartet of talented vocalists; Leona Thurber and her "Blackbirds," in "coon" songs and eccentric dancing; Brockman, Mack and Belmont in a mirth-provoking comedy sketch; Klain and Klein, comedy jugglers; Lillian Maynard, English comedienne; Willie and Edith Hart, pleasing singers and dancers; Gaylor and Graff, in a comedy sketch. An entire list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be exhibited in the ever-popular kinetograph. The Broomstick Witches from "The Isle of Spice" is underlined for the week of May 21.

GRIEF EXPRESSED

In Letter From Cervera To Rt. Rev. Mgr. O'Callaghan

Rt. Rev. Mgr. E. M. O'Callaghan, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic Church, Concord, formerly of this city, has received the following letter from Admiral Pascual Cervera of the Spanish navy:

Madrid, April 21, 1906.
Rt. Rev. Mgr. O'Callaghan:
Rt. Rev. and Dear Friend—It is with the greatest affliction of spirit that I have read in the papers of the awful catastrophe which occurred in America, to the city of San Francisco.

I beg to extend through you, to all your countrymen, the victims of this great calamity, my heartfelt sympathy. All the world is struck with sorrow and pray for their speedy restoration to their former happiness and prosperity. I am, all ways, your very sincere friend.

PASCUAL CERVERA.

When Admiral Cervera was on parole in Portsmouth, visiting the prisoners of war at Portsmouth navy yard, Mgr. O'Callaghan was pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception in this city, and he formed a close friendship with the distinguished Spaniard, which has continued ever since.

The British in Egypt.

Lord Cromer gave a forecast of the British programme in Egypt the other day, when he opened the Nile-Red sea railroad, connecting the junction of the Nile and the Atbara with Port Sudan. He said that nothing was more certain than that the future of Egypt was bound up intimately with that of the Sudan. The great works to be undertaken in the future were in the upper regions of the Nile valley.

FRENCH TURMOIL

It is to be hoped that the recent reports that have come from Paris regarding the political and social conditions, which are described as bordering upon a revolution, are more gloomy than the facts actually warrant. If all that is said of the situation is true the French government has for some time been playing with the elements of discord and disruption, for the sake of preserving prestige with two classes, the militant churchmen on the one hand and the militant labor unions on the other. It is true that the ordinary man in the patches that have come forth have shown but little sign of such a state of affairs as that described at length in recent communications, but this may be due to the censorship which it is charged, the government has undertaken to maintain, says the Washington Star.

As the first of May approached the apprehensions of those who observe foreign affairs necessarily rose to a higher pitch. That day is almost invariably marked with disorders. It is the annual occasion of ebullition on the part of the working classes, the discontented especially. It is the day of the periodic walk outs and strikes. In France, however, this occasion has been anticipated by the precipitation of numerous strikes, notably that of the coal miners, who were hastened in their program by their resentment of the manner in which the mine owners managed affairs after the great disaster at Lens. It may be that this precipitancy is a factor for the security of the government, which has thus been enabled to measure the force of the revolutionary tendency and to prepare for the emergencies.

It must always be remembered that there is perennially in evidence in France, notably in Paris, a distinctly revolutionary movement. Its managers are well known to the authorities. Their aims are thoroughly understood. Their plots and schemes are usually disclosed immediately to the police through the most elaborate system of spies to be found anywhere in the world, save possibly in Russia. These revolutionists are regarded as comparatively harmless. They congregate in the lower cafes and sing their songs of anarchism and talk eloquently of the righting of wrongs and fulminate on the evils of government, knowing full well that they are being kept closely under the official eye and that transcripts of their songs and speeches are filed each morning with the prefect of the police, and through him with the minister for the interior. It is a merry game and seldom is anybody hurt. The "revolution" is an institution, recognized as such by both the people and the government, and thoroughly discounted.

It now remains to be seen whether the "revolution" will advance from its academic and cafe chantant stages to the plane of actual endeavor. If the propagandists of the great overturn who have been preaching and singing for years have actually joined hands with the labor unions and have formed a distinct and working organization, and have set a program which is more than merely electoral in its character, France may indeed be on the verge of a crisis. But much allowance must be made for the Gallic temperament. And much more must be made for the fact that France is just at present in the process of choosing members of the national chambers. We have had similar symptoms in this country in the past when the ballot box has cast its shadow before.

MAKING A HIT.

"Perhaps I can give you a pointer or two on business said the retired merchant to the young man just starting out in business. 'One of the things I regard as of the first importance is to inspire your customers with confidence in you. That isn't always easy to do, but I succeeded in doing it from the first and I soon got a reputation for reliability that I believe has been the corner stone of my success.'"

"Honesty is the best policy," quoted the young business man. "I hope I shall always keep that in mind."

"Him? Yes," said the elder. "But you want to be honest judiciously and without recklessness. Establish a reputation for honesty, by all means. I think I may say without boasting that I have always been as honest as circumstances would permit, and that is as much as any of us can say. I don't mind telling you how I first got my reputation in that line."

"I had got a little capital together, and with that and some credit I opened a small general store in a country town. When I was in the city buying goods I happened to attend a sale of unclaimed baggage—trunks and that sort of thing. You bought unsight unseen then. It may be different now. I bought a large trunk, somewhat battered and shabby, but a good trunk all the same, for five dollars. I calculated that if the contents didn't amount to anything the trunk would be worth that to carry back a few notions as baggage and save me freight. Perhaps I stood to lose a little, but the chance attracted me."

"When I got the trunk to the place where I was staying what do you think I found? It was full of husking gloves, suspenders and turkey-red calico. Say! It seemed to me I had made my fortune right there. Well, I locked up the trunk again and took it home with me and put the stuff in with the rest of the stock. It hadn't been there a day before I had sold enough of it—gloves, suspenders and calico—to pay for more than my original outlay. I was tickled to death."

"The next day I sort of woke up. A farmer to whom I had sold a pair of the gloves brought them back. He was mad clean through. 'See here,' he said, 'these gloves are rotten. No good at all. They won't last a week at the rate they're going.' I looked at them and sure enough they were about about worn through. For a moment I thought I'd give him another pair, but then it came to me like a flash that the whole trunkful was probably in the same fix and I'd lose a customer if I stuck him twice at the start. What did I do? I opened the store door and chucked the gloves into the fire and then went and picked him out a good pair from the new stock. I acted just as mad as he did, only I was mad with the house that had imposed on me by selling me rotten gloves."

"It's the last order they get from me," I said. "I'm sorry you had the trouble of bringing the gloves back, but you bet if anything you get out of the store isn't right, I'll make it right. I lose the money on these goods, because they're not returnable, but I don't care for that. I'm here to see that my customers are protected."

"Well, that farmer went out convinced that I was a square man to do business with. I got his trade from that time on. It worked the same way with the others who bought gloves, and with the others who bought suspenders, and with the women who bought the turkey red. I told 'em to keep the goods if they could use 'em for anything, and lots of 'em did, but I gave 'em new and good goods in place all the same, without a kick or a question. Then I'd take the turkey red or the suspenders or the gloves and I'd say to a customer who was going to buy: 'Now, these goods I'm not just certain about. I've had one or two complaints about 'em. They're cheaper than this lot here, but maybe you won't like 'em. I like to be honest with my customers, so I tell you that straight. But if they ain't all right, bring 'em back or let me know and you'll get your money back. That's the way I do business.'"

"Worked like a charm. They all swore by me. I was out five dollars on that trunk, but I'd got a reputation that knocked my competition silly, and after that when I bought goods I always made a point of buying something worthless or damaged for a song—not too much of it, but enough to keep the game going. See anything in the idea?"

"It's worth thinking over," said the young man.—Chicago Daily News.

Flower of the Falls.

Growing in the spray of the great Victoria falls in South Africa, a new gladiolus has been discovered, and named the "Maid of the Mist." Four bulbs of this plant, sent to England, have been induced to sprout and bloom by virtue of constant spraying in a hothouse. There the interesting discovery was made that the petals of the flower are so arranged as to form a penthouse to protect the stamens and pistils from the drenching downpour to which they would otherwise be subjected in the native haunts of the plant.

Twins Born Different Years.

Mrs. Hans Hansen, wife of a motorman of Oakbrook, Wis., claims the distinction of being the mother of two children who, though twins, were born in different years. She gave birth to the first at 11:55 p. m. December 31, 1905, and to the second at 12:12 a. m., 1906. She has not decided which day shall be celebrated by the twins as their birthday when they grow up.

WANTED NAME FOR BABY.

Woman at Public Directory Kept Many Business People Waiting.

A stylishly dressed and altogether good looking woman was turning over the leaves of the directory in a leisurely manner when an irascible old gentleman, known to his many acquaintances as a man with a very small stock of patience, entered, relates the Portland Express. He wished to use the directory, too, possibly to look up the address of a man who owed him money. He stood about, now and then casting heavy looks in the direction of the directory, and coughing suggestively.

A business man in a hurry followed. He wanted to know where Walter Jones lived. It is a block or two away, but he has forgotten the number. He fell into line.

Then a man who sought some city official, but knew nothing of his office, except that it closed in a few minutes, joined the ranks of waiters.

Still the woman placidly turned over leaf after leaf, without any apparent intention to decide whether the name she was seeking was Brown, Smith or Jones.

Finally, when matters were beginning to grow very tense, a young man rushed in. His mission would positively admit of no delay, so he politely offered to assist the woman, suggesting that his experience might tend to save time and lessen her labor. When he asked her what she sought, with a sweet smile full of appreciation, she replied: "Oh, thank you. You are very kind. I am trying to find a real pretty name for my baby."

MILITARY MEN ARE HANDY.

Those in Garrison Towns of France Make Themselves Generally Useful.

The order of the French minister of war that the sharpshooters of the garrison towns on the coast shall devote their time to the extermination of the seals, which threaten the fisheries of the French coast, is novel, but merely a repetition of history, states the New York Herald.

Some years ago the province of Luxembourg as infested with wolves. The alarmed inhabitants appealed to the minister of agriculture, who in turn called upon the minister of war, with the result that several regiments were ordered to the province and the pests were exterminated in short order.

It is not many years ago that German soldiers were ordered to East Belgium to assist the peasants in combating a plague of rats, and millions were killed before the troops were withdrawn. Four thousand Russian soldiers cleared the railway lines in the vicinity of Odessa after the great blizzard of 1903, and a company of French infantry enjoyed a lion hunt in the streets of Chartres when one of those animals escaped from a traveling menagerie.

Perhaps the oddest use to which soldiers are put is at the Heidelberg university, where the school of anatomy draws upon the garrison for its living object lessons.

FIRST ARTIFICIAL FIRE.

Created by Primitive Man by Rubbing Two Pieces of Wood Together.

Writes S. E. Forman in "Stories of Useful Inventions" in St. Nicholas: In the course of time a man somewhere in the world hit upon a plan of kindling a fire without having any fire to begin with; that is to say, he hit upon a plan of producing a fire by artificial means. He knew that by rubbing his hands together very hard and very fast he could make them very warm. By trial he learned that by rubbing two pieces of dry wood together he could make them very warm. Then he asked himself the question: Can a fire be kindled by rubbing two pieces of wood together, if they are rubbed hard enough? He placed upon the ground a piece of perfectly dry wood and rubbed this with the end of a stick until a groove was made. In the groove a fine dust of wood—a kind of sawdust—was made by the rubbing. He went on rubbing hard and fast, and behold, the dust in the groove began to glow! He placed some dry grass upon the embers and blew upon them with his breath, and the grass burst into a flame. Here for the first time a man kindled a fire for himself. He had invented the match, the greatest invention, perhaps, in the history of the world.

Portable Coal Mines.

Coal mines on wheels are scouted by Edison. Instead of digging gross material out of the earth, loading it on cars and carrying it perhaps 500 miles, to put it under a boiler, burn it, and so get power, he says we shall set up plants at the mouths of the mines, generate the power there, and transmit it wherever it is needed by copper wires. It is easier to carry molecular vibrations, millions of waves a second, than freight cars full of crude matter. We can ship a 100,000 horse power over a wire quicker and more economically than we can send the equivalent in coal over a railroad.

Vital Element in Plants.

Nitrogen is so vital to the growth of plants that large sums are expended for fertilizers rich in that element. So far chemistry has done nothing effective in the way of obtaining nitrogen from the atmosphere. Yet it is calculated that the nitrogen in the air weighs no less than four billion million tons.

ROOSEVELT'S DUDE OUTFIT

Young Fellows from New York Who Didn't Take with the Cowboy.

"It was in 1885 that I first saw Roosevelt," says H. W. Otis, of Peshawar, Wash., in Pecos Magazine. "That was the year he established his ranch in the Bad Lands of Dakota and Nebraska. Had I known that young fellow was booked for the presidency of the United States I certainly would have cultivated his acquaintance more than I did."

"The most conspicuous parts of him then, as now, were his glasses and his big teeth. I remember his advent into camp and his initiation as a cowboy. It is always the custom to get, for the tenderfoot to ride the worst broncho obtainable. Roosevelt, on getting astride the wild horse, was mighty soon dumped off. He was thrown time and time again, but persisted until he succeeded in breaking the animal to ride, and when he came back to camp he let out a war whoop worthy of a true buckaroo. That experience gained for him the respect of the older cowboys, who looked with haughty disdain upon a tenderfoot."

"There were five or six young fellows from New York with Roosevelt, and we called them 'the dude outfit.' I have no doubt President Roosevelt well remembers an incident which occurred in camp one day on the roundup. We had in our gang a wild, reckless fellow named Bill Jones. Bill had killed another man's dog. One of the New Yorkers said: 'I'd like to see that Bill Jones kill a dog of mine.' 'Well,' said Bill, who chanced to hear the remark, 'you just play for a few minutes that it was your dog that Bill Jones killed.' The young New Yorker concluded that he did not care to have anything to do with supposititious cases—at least he remained in the tent."

A RECIPE FOR DIAMONDS.

If Anyone Wants to Make a Few. Here Is the Way to Go About It.

Would you like to know how to manufacture diamonds—real diamonds? The process is somewhat difficult, requiring time, patience and some outlay of money, but then consider the possible results! The diamond, we know, says the New York Herald, is simply carbon in a transparent crystalline form. It comes of humble parentage and is brother to the lump of coal.

Unlike easily crystallizable bodies, carbon is insoluble in all ordinary solvents, but molten metals will combine with it. Let the diamond maker choose iron for a solvent for charcoal, melting it in an electric furnace, allowing it to take up as much carbon as it can—in other words, saturate itself with carbon. The crucible containing the white hot metal should then be plunged into a bath of molten lead. The result will be that globules of iron will rise to the surface of the lead and are quickly cooled on the outer surface. Inside the hard crust the iron remains for some time in a molten condition, and, as iron expands in solidifying, the contents of these little globules receive a pressure unattainable by any other means. When the lead becomes solidified some bullets of iron will be found bound up in the mass. Dissolve with some powerful acid first the lead and then the iron, and a residue of carbonaceous matter will be found to contain tiny crystals—real diamonds. Any chemist with a well equipped laboratory can make diamonds in this way, but the largest of them will not be more than a fiftieth of an inch in diameter.

Birth of a New Russia.

However completely the czar's government may enforce its authority in rebellious cities and districts, there is a new Russia to be reckoned with. The old order has passed away. The proof is found in the free speech of the Russian press. The bare fact that a St. Petersburg daily has dared to predict that the revolts are crushed now, they will break out again in January or February stronger than ever proves a tremendous change. The only line of movement is forward. Free speech must lead to freedom in all things, to the degree that the country may be able to assimilate and make good use of liberty.—Cleveland Leader.

The American Chameleon.

The American chameleon, a small lizard (Anolis carolinensis), inhabits various parts of the southern United States. The little animal has the remarkable habit of quickly and completely changing its colors, varying from brown to yellow of pale green. Its food consists of insects. The little animal is perfectly harmless to higher forms of life, is often kept as a pet, and has been worn attached to a chain as an ornament. The toes are provided with adhesive pads, which enable the lizard to run upon smooth vertical surfaces.—St. Nicholas.

Too Bewildering.

"Yes, dear boy, I lost my cane and advertised a reward for it, don't you know?" "Did you get your cane back, old chap?" "I got back such a lot of 'em, don't you know, that it was positively bewildering and pretty soon it was quite impossible for me to remember how my cane looked—and so I let 'em have 'em all, don't you know."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

POLICE AT WORK

Busily Engaged on Yeaton Case

A FEW COMPLICATIONS HAVE DEVELOPED

Others Besides Those Arrested Are Probably Implicated

INVESTIGATIONS NOW BEING MADE BY THE AUTHORITIES

It is the opinion of the police that the grain stealing case, two preliminary hearings on which have been held in police court, will prove to be a complicated one. They are convinced that a number of men are concerned, several of them residing out of town.

"I am positive that we have lighted upon what practically amounts to a conspiracy," said City Marshal Entwistle to a reporter for this paper today (Wednesday). There is no question in my mind that there has been organized stealing from the Yeaton firm.

"Grain was sold, according to the evidence in our possession, to certain men at a price ridiculously low. That these men believed they were purchasing it honestly is to me incredible. We are almost certain that they bought it knowing all the circumstances and retailed it at a price far below that charged by the dealers who paid the actual wholesale price, at the same time making a handsome profit for themselves.

"No arrests have been made aside from those of Hall and Porter. There has been, however, rigid investigation, and we very strongly suspect several men who have as yet not been placed in custody. The names of these men I cannot at present divulge.

"Some of the men we suspect live in York and we have been making efforts to secure evidence against them."

It is too early, the police think, to make any sensational announcements, but the case is one of the most interesting that has demanded their attention in some time.

Hall and Porter will again appear in police court on Saturday.

WANT MORE ROOM

Franklin Pierce Veterans Wish To Enlarge Quarters

The Franklin Pierce Veteran Firemen's Association is after more room at its headquarters on Maplewood avenue. It is understood that the members have petitioned the city council for the use of all the room on the first floor.

Already the organization occupies two-thirds of the first floor, which it has repaired and fitted in an excellent manner at no small expense to the association.

The building was badly in need of repair and it was a good plan to let the firemen carry out their plans, as they have done.

The request for more room is due to the large increase in membership and the great activity of the organization during the past six months.

If the city fathers give the veterans the additional room, it is understood that the hand tub will be quartered in the part of the building they wish to secure.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Abbie Rice Winder

The death of Mrs. Abbie Rice Winder occurred this (Wednesday) forenoon at the home of her sister, Miss Hope Goodwin, on Islington street, at the age of seventy-seven years, two months and twenty days. She had long been ill.

Mrs. Winder was the widow of Capt. William A. Winder, U. S. N., retired, a Virginian by birth, who died in March, 1903, at Omaha, Neb., aged eighty years.

She was a daughter of the late Hon. Ichabod Goodwin, the war governor of New Hampshire, and Sarah Parker Rice Goodwin, a daughter of Hon. William Rice, a wealthy and prosperous merchant of Portsmouth.

Mrs. Winder is survived by one son, Comdr. William Winder, U. S. N., who was present at her death.

She is also survived by a sister, Miss Hope Goodwin, with whom she resided at the Goodwin mansion on Islington street, and one brother, Frank Goodwin, of Hotel Rockingham.

Mrs. Winder was a lady of fine presence and of distinguished talent. Her kindness of heart and generous impulses were proverbial and she leaves precious memorials to kinship and to the community.

She was a beloved and beautiful woman, the center of a large circle of loving relatives and friends to remember and cherish the noble qualities which adorned her life. Her mother was, before her marriage to Gov. Goodwin, Miss Sarah Rice, a daughter of a distinguished family of our city and state.

On returning from San Francisco with her husband, to bring their son to enter the Naval Academy at Annapolis, she remained East and passed her life in her native city, the intimate companion of her parents and the oldest child in a home of generous hospitalities.

The home had its bereavements. Three younger sisters married and died, leaving children to be welcomed to the old home and cherished with the tenderest care. Love was the solace of sorrow, and the ties of family life were enriched by its warmth and sincerity. To this home, Mrs. Winder made the gift of her daily life and what a gift it was. She, with the beloved sister next in age, gave to the home all that a true home should have, shelter, welcome, sympathy and inspiration. She endeavored herself to young and old, and while her wit and brilliant, delicate society, her sympathy and thoughtfulness made her a real friend to the friendless and a helper of the helpless, cheerfully giving to each her best. Nor was there any patriotic or charitable movement in the city which did not enlist her interest.

Happily, the beloved son, knit to her heart by stronger than ordinary ties, was able to return in time to be at his mother's bedside and to witness the passing from human environment to that realm where there is "no more pain and all tears shall be wiped away, the Father's House on high."

Mrs. Lucy M. Rand

Mrs. Lucy M. Rand, wife of John S. Rand, died today (Wednesday) at her home, 24 State street.

Mrs. Rand had been ill several weeks. Last winter, she suffered a severe ill turn while entering the Y. M. C. A. building on Congress street and never recovered. The date of her death was the forty-sixth anniversary of her marriage.

Her maiden name was Miss Lucy Rogers and she was born in Elliot, her father being at one time a Congregational clergyman of that town.

She was a lady loved and respected by all who knew her and her life was noted for its devotion to the service of others. In church and charitable work, she was always active. She was a zealous member of the North Church and throughout her life was tireless in promoting the interests of its missionary and philanthropic societies. It was when on her way to a meeting of one of those societies that she was stricken with her fatal illness.

Her married life was ideal. Besides her husband, she is survived by one son, Arthur Rand of New York.

A NOTABLE PRODUCTION

Will Be That of "As Ye Sow" at Music Hall

One of the largest houses in the history of Music Hall should greet the members of the "As Ye Sow" company on Monday evening. In Boston, during the early months of the season, this company at the Majestic Theatre smashed all previous attendance records. On one occasion, Thanksgiving day, two matinees were given to gratify the public demand.

In this city, it appears, the success will be continued. Already several theatre parties have been organized, including those from York Harbor, York Beach and Exeter.

From Newington, Raymond, Epping, Newmarket, Newfields, Greenland, Hampton, North Hampton, Rye, Eliot and South Berwick queries have been received as to the date and means of transportation.

The sale of seats will commence on Friday morning.

WHAT WAS IT?

East Hampton, Conn., Experiences a Queer Shaking of the Earth

East Hampton, Conn., was severely shaken by a mysterious subterranean disturbance Tuesday morning. Some people believe that it was an earthquake and others lay the blame on old Moodus mountain, which has produced strange noises and been responsible for earth tremblings before.

"Uncle" Horace Johnson of Middle Haddam says that the East Hampton shake was only the precursor of a big earthquake in New England the last of this month.

Prof. William North Rice of Wesleyan College also predicts frequent earthquakes in New England, but says that they will do no damage.

Attleboro, Mass., was shaken a little on Tuesday evening and the jar put out the street lights. Whether it was an earthquake or not, no one seems to know.

THE FATE OF DECATUR

Now Said To Be Trembling In The Balance

NEW HAMPSHIRE SENATORS WORKING FOR HIM

The fate of Stephen Decatur, Jr., of this city, who was dismissed from the Naval Academy for hazing, is now in the hands of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Newberry, and his recommendation will determine whether the descendant of the famous Commodore Decatur shall be restored to Annapolis or not. It is expected to be sent to the White House in a short time.

President Roosevelt is understood to be against reinstating Decatur. Senator Burnham of New Hampshire, who appointed Decatur, and Senator Crane of Massachusetts had a conference with him on Monday in the boy's behalf. The three charges of hazing against Decatur were almost trivial, and the inference here is that secret charges, not touched upon in the investigation, have been made, and that the decision hinges upon these.

The President has recommended the reinstatement of three dismissed cadets, Foster, Melvin and De Saussure, and Decatur's offenses were no more serious than theirs. Senator Burnham still hopes Decatur will be reinstated.

MULLEN LIKES IT

Considers Combination Chemical Waggon All Right

Chairman Ira C. Seymour of the committee on fire department has received the following self-explanatory letter from John A. Mullen, chief of the Boston fire department:

Boston, April 17, 1906.

Ira C. Seymour,

Portsmouth, N. H.

Dear Sir:--In reply to your letter of the 16th inst., will state that we have in service two combination hose and chemical wagons and use the same with satisfactory results. We are about to install one or more of them in the residential districts, and I consider it would be an ideal piece of apparatus for your city.

Hoping the above will be satisfactory, I remain

Yours very truly,
JOHN A. MULLEN,
Chief of Department.

Mr. Seymour has written letters to fire department chiefs in other cities where combination chemical wagons are in use and expects early replies.
